DEATH OF THE OLDEST NATIVE CITIZEN.

'Squire John Eubank Crosses the Divide Sunday Morning at 6 o'clock in the Presence of His Family.

BORN AND REARED IN COLUMBIA.

The death of 'Squire John Eubank which occurred last Sunday morning at 6 o'clock, was not a surprise, as it had been generally known for several weeks that his life was ebbing away. Notwithstanding his advanced age, he was perfectly conscious up to the final dissolution.

He was born and reared in Columbia and never lived elsewhere, his allotment of life being, lacking a few weeks, eighty-five years, his birthday falling on April the 25th.

When our war with Mexico came Mr. Eubank enlisted in Capt. Jack Squires company and served until peace was declared. He was a mechanical genius, and after returning from the war he opened a shop in this town and was an active, industrious man until old age necessitated the laying aside of tools, the remainder of his life being quietly spent with his family in Columbia.

Many years ago he became a Democratic candidate for magistrate, was elected and served his district in that capacity for thirty-eight years. In building the present court-house, he was a member of the Committee appointed by the court to superintend and pass upon the work—to see that it was built according to specifications.

He was one of the most widely known men in Adair county, and had been a Master Mason for about sixty-two years. He often served Columbia Lodge, No. 96, as Master, and in his younger days frequently visited sister lodges, assisting in the work.

Many years ago he made a profession of his faith in Christ, united with the Methodist Church, and lived consistently until the end came.

He was the oldest native citizen of Columbia, his whole life having been spent in the town with the exception of a few months in Mexico, and he died in fifty yards of where he was born.

He was three times married, there being three sets of children, eight in all, one of whom being dead. His last wife, living.

The funeral services were held in the Methodist church Monday morning at 10 o'clock, conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. S. Chandler, assisted by Rev. O. P. Bush, of the Baptist church, Presiding Elder W. F. Hogard and Eld. Z. T. Williams, of the Christian Church, Columbia Lodge, No. 96, being present in a body. After religious services the Fraternity took charge of the remains, wending its way to the cemetery where the body was interred with the usual formalities. The surviving members of the family have the sympathy of the entire community.

The floral offerings were beautiful.

Death of a Little Child.

On March 5th, death came to the home of William and Janie Burton and removed their little seven months old baby girl. A short talk was made by Rev. J. D. Burton, after which the little body was laid to rest in the Bear-wallow cemetery. The parents have the sympathy of the community.

Mr. J. H. Holladay, of this county, was recently granted a life certificate to teach in the public schools of this State.

Lost—An umbrella, the handle almost square. Hollow knot in the end of the handle. It was left somewhere on the square. Return to this office.

There will be singing at Zion Saturday night March 13. We will have a supply of new books for 1915 everybody cordially invited. The object of this singing is to get organized for some practice work.

Announcement.

Last Saturday afternoon Mrs. Eris Barger entertained most delightfully, at her beautiful home on Bomar Height, a number of the girls and young women of this place to a Progressive Rook party, to announce the engagement of her sister, Miss Mary Myers, to Mr. Herman M. Barnett, of Chicago, Ill.

The hall, parlor and dining room were thrown to gether, and were beautifully decorated with ferns and potted plants, and in which many games of Rook were played. Mrs. Ernest Harris being the champion player received as a prize a large box of choice chocolates.

Delightful refreshments, consisting of salads, olives, pickles, sandwiches and hot chocolate with whipped cream were served at each table. After which all were called into the parlor where Mrs. Ward Denton read aloud the announcement as given by Mrs. Barger. The wedding to be May, 12th 1915. After the announcement each one was given a piece of paper and pencil and asked to write their congratulations to the bride-to-be in poetry, which she read aloud to all, amid roars of laughter. Then all were given a hand-painted souvenir, in the shape of a heart and on which the announcement was written.

The Tramp Convention.

The court-house was well-filled last Saturday evening to witness the proceeding of the Tramp Convention. An entertainment gotten up by young men of the Lindsey-Wilson. Y. M. C. A.

They pictured the life of the typical tramp, his ups and downs on the road, mostly downs. How to avoid a biting dog, unique way of getting a handout, and how to secure apparel, etc. The stories of the Knights kept the audience in an uproar, many appearing to be delighted with the various stories. The boys conceived the idea of giving the play, and managed it throughout. The costumes were hideous, and the faces and hands of the actors indicated that a bath would be conducive to health.

The proceeds will go to purchase chairs for their hall. The boys feel grateful for the patronage received.

We wish to thank the people in and around the neighborhood of Casey Creek for the kindness that was shown to us during the sickness and death of our dear daughter and sister, Jennie. Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Wolford and family.

The Kentucky Library Commission has loaned the Columbia Library 50 books, which are free to every one. These books are not for entertainment solely, but contain much useful information. The Columbia Library is steadily growing. Owns, 93 books. Every one is most cordially invited to join, not only for the pleasure and information they will gain, but that we may leave a heritage to our children. The benefits of good literature can hardly be over estimated. "Books enlarge a man's horizon, they raise a mirage of water brooks and date palms to travelers in a desert."

Passes on Green County Case.

Judge Walter Evans Friday morning, in the Green county case, sustained certain points and dismissed others, in the demurrer filed to the answer of the Fiscal Court, the People's Bank, the County Treasurer and the County Court Clerk in the suit against them for the payment of railroad bonds. Judge Evans held that the County Court Clerk and the People's Bank were not to be held responsible for the payment, and upheld their answers in this respect.

He upheld the demurrer against the Fiscal Court stating that the pleading that it was not responsible for the appropriation of taxes designated by the taxpayers for specific purposes, was not sufficient. He gave ten days to file an amended petition.

In the case of the County Treasurer, who claimed that the taxes were not collected, but were donated by the citizens for specific purposes mentioned by them, he held that this was a question of fact and proof will be taken on the point.

Mr. Gaither Dohoney Dead.

Mr. Gaither Dohoney, who was born and reared in the Keltner section of Adair county, died Tuesday of last week, aged seven-six years.

He was a soldier in the Federal army during the war of the rebellion, serving in the 13th Kentucky regiment, Capt. W. W. Woodruff's company. As a soldier, he was valiant, and as a citizen, upright in all his dealings. He will be greatly missed from the neighborhood where he spent so many years of his life.

Mr. J. L. Wilson, a prominent druggist of Greensburg, is now erecting a modern three story brick drug store on the site of his old building, which will be a credit to Greensburg and an honor to the proprietor. It will cost fully five thousand dollars. Mr. Wilson is an enterprising citizen, and the building now in course of construction has been contemplated for some time, by the druggist, who has been anxious for an inviting home for his place of business.

On Friday morning Feb. 26 1915 at 8 o'clock, Louise C Selby, wife of the late Green B. Selby, of Russell Co. Ky., passed over the river of death at her home at Esto. Her maiden name was Collins, a sister of Thomas A. and S. P. Collins, who for many years lived in Russell county. Also a sister of Wm. H. and Mack Collins, who for many years resided in an Adair Co. She lived to the good old age of 85 yrs and 8 mo. She had been a consistent member of the Methodist Church for many years and died in the Christian faith. She had been an invalid for many years, but bore her afflictions with patience. She was a kind indulgent mother, ever ready to give her children good advice and counsel. Had many friends in the neighborhood, where she lived. It is hard to be separated from our mother, but we hope one day to meet her in the Celestial City, where there will be no more sad parting.

As to Quarantine.

Mr. A. Hunn, who is the live stock inspector for Adair county, has received the following information from Commissioner J. W. Newman:

"I beg to advise that under the present quarantine orders no stock can be moved from one county to another unless they are inspected by a county live stock inspector in the county in which they are, and also by the county live stock inspector of the county to which they are going. This is done in order to keep track of any animals that might possibly be infected with this disease, and is mainly aimed at cattle imported from other States and held in one county for a while and then moved into another. Great pressure has been brought to bear upon the Live Stock Sanitary Board to prevent the movement of animals from one county to another, but we thought it best to leave it so animals could be inspected by the county live stock inspector and then be moved."

Mrs. Geo. H. Burton, the beloved wife of Rev. (Heck) Burton, died at her home in South Carolina, ten days ago. She was a fine Southern lady and was married to her husband, who was a native of this place, soon after the close of the Civil War. Miss Ellen Burton, of Columbia, sister-in-law, was with her in the last hours of her life. The husband knows that he has the sympathy of the people of his old home town.

The Omnibus war claims bill passed both houses of Congress and a large number of claims will be paid to Kentuckians and also the churches and public buildings of this State. The estate of Patrick Bridgewater, Adair county, will receive $220.

Mr. J. M. Montgomery, who was a staunch supporter of Congressman Ben Johnson, is now the postmaster at Greensburg, and he is making a most efficient officer. He is assisted in the office by a son and daughter, who take delight in waiting upon the patrons of the office. The appointment of Mr. Montgomery was a merited reward for long and valuable services rendered to the Democratic party.

The Bible Institute at Campbells-ville.

A very refreshing and a most profitable institute was held at Campbells-ville last week, lasting four or five days. It was conducted in the Baptist church by the pastor, who was assisted by some of the ablest ministers in the State, and several who live in other States. Our own, Geo. W. Perryman, was in attendance, and on Tuesday afternoon he delivered his lecture, "That Boy." It was highly appreciated by a crowded house, and when the speaker concluded words of praise came from all those who heard it. Rev. Perryman is now pastor of the Baptist Church, Winchester, and ranks as one of the able men of the organization in the State.

The other ministers present took part in the exercises and their sermons and talks evinced learning, each one having a happy way of imparting his thoughts. The song service was inspiring, there being thirty or forty good singers in the choir. Mrs. S. E. Kerr accompanied the organ with a violin.

There were several discourses directed to the ungodly and a number of professions were made during the week.

The institute was certainly an uplift to the people of Campbells-ville and Taylor county and all visitors from other counties. Campbells-ville showed her hospitality and delightfully entertained those from a distance in a most happy and gracious manner.

Miss Sybil Courts and Mr. Ed Leachman, a popular couple of Greensburg, were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Courts, last Wednesday morning at 5 o'clock. The ceremony was witnessed by a large circle of relatives and friends. Immediately after congratulations the couple took the train for Louisville and other interesting points. They will reside in Greensburg.

TOM RHEA COMES OUT FOR AUDITOR

Seeks Nomination on "Strong and Worthy" Democratic Ticket.

RECORD AS ASSESSING OFFICER

Is Reviewed in Refuting Reckless Charges of Favoritism Toward Big Corporate Interests Made by Owsley Stanley—Will Not Enter Into Controversy With His Detractor—Points With Pride to Manner in Which Present Administration of Treasurer's Office Has Overcome Deficit Inherited From Republican Predecessor.

Thomas S. Rhea of Logan county, present state treasurer of Kentucky and late chairman of the Democratic state campaign committee, today makes announcement of his candidacy for his party's nomination, in the August primary election, for the office of auditor of public accounts. In entering the race Mr. Rhea presents to the voters a brief review of his course as a member of the state board of valuation and assessment, the franchise tax board of the state, showing that that body has by unanimous action materially increased the assessment of all the large public service corporations, refuting the reckless charges made by Congressman Owsley Stanley that the board had been influenced in behalf of the corporations.

Mr. Rhea also reviews his course in the management of the state's financial department, the treasurer's office, declaring that the present administration has well handled a difficult financial condition left to it by the last Republican administration. His card of announcement follows:

To the Democrats of Kentucky:

On the first Saturday of next August the Democrats of Kentucky will nominate their candidates for state offices, and make up their ticket to be submitted to the voters in the November election. In that primary I shall be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the office of auditor of public accounts; and in making this announcement, I trust that my fellow Democrats will give to my candidacy their serious and favorable consideration. I shall endeavor to be very brief in what I say in this announcement, and shall rely upon the fair and discriminating intelligence of the people for what support I may receive.

I hope I may be pardoned for calling attention briefly to my experience as an officeholder. As sheriff of my native county of Logan, and then for the last three years and more as treasurer of Kentucky, I have tried faithfully and earnestly to so perform the duties of office as to justify the confidence of the people who so honored me.

Member of Important Boards.

As state treasurer I have been, according to law, a member of the important governing boards of the state, the sinking fund board, the printing board, the capitol board and the board of valuation and assessment. This latter board is one of especial importance and consists of only three members, the auditor, the treasurer, and the secretary of state. It deals with the important question of fixing the franchise valuations upon all corporations doing business in this state, for purposes of taxation. The record made by the present board in the last three years has been remarkable and unprecedented. The board has not sought to hinder or cripple legitimate corporate industries of the state; but it has so increased their franchise assessments that the state is now receiving several hundred thousands of dollars more in taxes every year from this source than it ever received before. As a member of that board I have helped diligently in the work of adjusting these matters in accordance with the best interests of the people and without causing unjust hardship upon any legitimate industry. This board, with my active assistance, in the last three years, has increased the franchise valuations upon all the corporations of the state from $48,000,000 to $132,000,000; and four of the largest railroad companies, whose assessments were raised, have enjoined the collection and carried the question into the federal courts, where the cases are now pending for a decision. The favorable settlement of these cases in the courts together with the large increases from other corporations which are not contested, means a great boon to the taxpayers and a most valuable increase in our revenues. In the four years of the present administration the increase of revenues from the assessments of those corporations, which have not contested increases, will amount to a sum to the state far in excess of $1,000,000; and the increase of revenues from the same source to the counties, cities, towns and school districts of the state will amount to about $2,000,000 for the same period. Should the courts sustain the action of the board in the raises made upon the four railroad companies I have referred to, it would add about $1,000,000 more revenue to the state and about $2,000,000 more to the counties, cities, towns and school districts in the same four years.

Explains Single Attack.

Notwithstanding my well known record upon the board in these matters and my efforts to serve the best interests of the people by placing a larger and a just burden of taxation upon the corporations, one man alone in all the state has undertaken to criticize me about the work of the board, and to reflect upon my conduct in connection with it. Mr. A. O. Stanley, some time ago, in announcing himself as a candidate for the nomination for governor, with his usual disregard for the truth, made an attack upon me and sought to create the impression that the corporations had been too favorably treated by the board, and that I and other gentlemen he mentioned had in some way been responsible for it. The record and the facts completely disprove his insinuations or charges, and show that no franchise board in the history of Kentucky ever made such large increases in the assessments of corporations. Mr. Stanley can hardly plead ignorance of these facts, because they have been discussed in the press and the courts of the state a great deal in the last two or three years. I am not a candidate for the same office that he is seeking, nor do I propose to descend into a controversy with him and would not now mention him except for his wanton attack upon me. The people of Kentucky have learned to know him as a man utterly reckless and unreliable in his statements or in his charges against other men. The only criticisms that have ever been made about the work of this board have come from those who have complained that we have raised the assessments upon corporations too high. I shall gladly stand upon the record of that board and upon my part in its work.

In the campaign last fall I was selected without opposition by the party leaders and the state committees as the Democratic campaign chairman for the state, and we succeeded in carrying the state for the Democratic ticket by the largest majority in a general election for thirty years. I do not wish to claim the credit for that splendid result, but as campaign chairman I gave all of my time and service to help in bringing it about.

Inherited Large Debt.

The present state administration, of which I am a member, inherited a large debt and a disordered condition of finances from the preceding Republican administration; and that inheritance, together with the increased demands upon our revenues for educational purposes, for Confederate pensions, and for other worthy causes, has imposed upon us a difficult situation to deal with, and one that has tried our best efforts and energies. As head of the treasury department of the state, I believe I may say without boasting, that its affairs under these difficulties have been conducted in a business-like and successful manner; that the revenues of the state have been properly guarded, and creditors have not been inconvenienced or disappointed. I believe the work of this administration, regardless of hostile criticism, will, when impartially and fairly measured, commend itself to the good opinion of fair-minded people.

It is now my desire to be on the Democratic ticket as its candidate for auditor and to serve in that office for the next four years. The experience I have had as treasurer, and in such close connection with the office of auditor, should enable me to render efficient and valuable service in that position.

I, therefore ask the Democrats of Kentucky for their support in the August primary; and I ask that they place me upon a Democratic ticket so strong and worthy that it will deserve and receive the support of the good people of Kentucky in the November election. And may the people of our state in the election this year show their appreciation of the splendid and incomparable administration of President Wilson, and demonstrate that Kentucky, in the presidential election next year, will be ready to show its purpose to help in the work of re-electing a president who has done such extraordinary service to the people of this country. Respectfully,
THOMAS S. RHEA.

What's The Matter With Your Baby?

The young mother—and many an old one, too—is often puzzled to know the cause of her child's ill nature. The loudness of its crying does not necessarily indicate the seriousness of its trouble. It may have nothing more the matter with it than a headache or a feeling of general dullness. It cannot, of course, describe its feelings, but as a preliminary measure you are safe in trying a mild laxative.

Nine times out of ten, you will find it is all the child needs, for its restlessness and peevishness are perhaps due to obstruction of the bowels, and once that has been remedied the headache, the sluggishness and the many other evidences of constipation and indigestion will quickly disappear.

Don't give the little one salts, cathartic pills or nasty waters, for these will act as purgatives, and they are too strong for a child. In the families of Mrs. M. S. Adams, Auburn, Ky., and Mrs. L. M. Boyce, Tip Top, Ky., the only laxative given is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It has been found to answer most perfectly all the purposes of a laxative, and its very mildness and freedom from gripping recommend it especially for the use of children, women, and old folks generally—people who need a gentle bowel stimulant. Thousands of American families have been enthusiastic about it for more than a quarter of a century.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

From L. Akin, Ky.

We take from the Musical Visitor the following honest confession of Mr. L. Akin, of this county, which is also a compliment to Rev. I. M. Grimsley, of this county:

Editor Visitor;—As I have never written to the Visitor I believe I'll try one, and if it escapes the junc pile I'll be surprised. I've been a blacksmith, a carpenter, a merchant a farmer, an officer, and now I've got up to a music teacher of the primary grade. If you will pardon me for using myself as a subject to write about, I will relate a joke on myself about the way I found that I knew nothing about music, I like to tell this joke because I learned more than one great lesson from it. The greatest of these lessons was never to judge a stranger by his outward appearance. One Saturday afternoon as I walked into a nearby country store, my eyes met those of a stranger some 18 or 20 years my senior whom I afterwards learned to be the Rev. I. M. Grimsley, a noted music teacher, who was on his way home from Tennessee, where he had been teaching. I had often heard of him. He was weary and his clothes had gotten somewhat soiled by the long trip he was making on foot. After viewing him as being a worthless tramp, I did not speak at first, because he and one of my neighbors were engaged in a conversation concerning the prospect of a music school at our school house. I sat down upon a nail keg and waited for a chance to speak and said: "Music is just a short course and any body can learn it in a short while." There, of course, he took me for a "Smart Eleck," and, if he did he didn't miss it far, either. He looked at me for awhile with a look of sympathy and slowly said: "Friend I beg to differ with you." Well, this sounded to me like he thought I didn't know what I was talking about, so I arose with some animation and entered into an argument with him, which he met with readiness, and I soon saw that I had met my superior in the knowledge of music. But I did not acknowledge that to him, but I quit the argument and stood back. He made up the school above referred to and I was a pupil in full, and upon the first night of the school I was there to bring up all of the fine points that were left out. But I soon found that the Rev. Grimsley was the teacher of that school, and not me. After the lesson I walked around, and for manner's sake I invited him to go home with me, and as it was raining, and as I lived close to the school house he accepted the invitation. I was beginning to give over but didn't want to let it be known just yet. So we started for my dwelling, and had gone some distance and had not spoken a word, finally he broke in by saying, "Well Bro. Akin, did you get any thing from the lesson to-night?" (just as though there was nothing else for one to learn.) "I did," was my answer. "What was it?" he said. There I had to fess up. I said, "I learned tonight that I don't know a blooming thing about music and but little about any thing else." Then he ran against me and knocked me out of the road and with a hearty laugh said, "I have you now where I want to get a fellow to teach him music, you can't teach a fellow a thing when he thinks he already knows it." We kept Bro. Grimsley three ten day terms and since then I have taken a normal course under his instructions. I regard Bro. Grimsley as a high class music teacher, a perfect gentleman and one of my best friends. I will say to all young people, when you meet a stranger treat him like a gentleman until he proves himself to be otherwise.

Yours with best wishes for the year,
L. Akin.
Good for you, brother Akin. You are not like the common run of "smarties" they don't know how much they have to know, to know how much they don't know.

This is the "Thornhill" Wagon — the Wagon that Must Make Good

The best known materials—the labor of master workmen—the aid of the most ingenious modern machinery have been employed to make the Thornhill wagon.

The wheels are made with excessive care. For the spokes the manufacturers use the finest hickory—machine driven to insure the right dish. The hubs are of oak, thoroughly seasoned and banded with double refined sable iron.

The bolsters are of the best white oak. They have an iron plate at top and bottom, riveted through and through—multiplying their strength.

The "Thornhill" has a malleable front hound plate that is braced to the hounds at all points. This is an exclusive "Thornhill" feature. It prevents the gears from ever getting out of line and causing hard pulling.

"Thornhill" wagons are equipped with long sleeve malleable—non-breakable skeins that insure light running, and outlast any other skein. Each skein is fitted to its axle with a Defiance machine—infallibly accurate. This machine insures the right pitch and tuck, makes light draft a certainty.

The axles are of toughest hickory—the steel axles of the best refined steel.

The sides of "Thornhill" beds are made of poplar. It costs the makers more—but it holds paint better and gives better service.

Come in and see this wagon—sold under a binding guarantee.

"AFTER THE BALL IS OVER."

Be it known that this office is in receipt of six type-written postal cards as follows:

Russell Springs, Ky., Mch. 5, '15.
Mr. C. S. Harris, Editor,
Columbia, Ky.

Dear Sir:—

You will kindly discontinue the Adair County News to my address after this date and greatly oblige yours respectfully.

One signed Robert Ingram,
One signed J. C. Acree,
One signed J. H. Womack,
One signed J. W. Kimble,
One signed B. F. Vails,
One signed Ermine Wilson.

J. W. Brumley under cover of an envelope, wrote as follows:

"Adair Count News,
Columbia, Ky.

Dear Sir:—

You will please stop my paper and send me statement of my account and I will send it in."

The above shows plainly to my mind, concerted action to strike The News the hardest blow possible, in Russell Springs, and that it has its origin in the brain and efforts of one or two persons, seems conclusive from the exact wording of the cards. What prompted this action was not explained, but on Saturday, Feb., 27th, a spirited contest closed for the building of the first road under State aid in this county.

There was an interested, invited delegation from Russell Springs on the scene of action with Mr. Ingram as spokesman, and like myself, he tried but failed, and under the excitement and enthusiasm of its closing, he doubtless felt that he was not a delegate to a Sunday School convention—a condition not enjoyed by myself and many others, for I received more than was due me. Disregarding the unpleasant incidents, The News did its duty in its report, last week. It neither complimented nor criticised individual action, but congratulated the winner—the James-town road. It stands pat. If the above mentioned movement of the Russell Spring parties was not born in the defeat, or the report if it, I can not conceive its origin. I did my duty as an interested citizen of this county, as a friend and supporter of the court, and as editor of The News in its report, keeping in view the well being of a great movement that means too much to be crippled by exploiting individual action, or in resenting indignities that may have come to any of us under the excitement of the hour. The people of Russell as well as Adair county, know the part The News has taken in the good roads movement. Many of them know the position I took, and I trust that all may finally know. I have no apology to offer as a citizen nor as a publisher. The News is not lamenting the apparent boy-cot, but it does regret the evidence of the rule or ruin spirit—willing to strike down a friend as readily as a foe when its fancies have not been fully met. If The News has sinned against Russell Springs or any member of its make up, here is tendered space to tell the public, and place it where it will be compelled to answer for its folly. Russell and Adair are as closely related as any two counties in the State. Each may well feel proud of the high esteem the one has for the other. So, under existing circumstances, I am not inclined to believe that the few at Russell Springs can encompass the destruction of The News in Russell county or divorce many of its friends in their own enterprising town. The same policy that has heretofore been employed in this office to best serve this entire section of the State will continue. Respectfully,

C. S. Harris.

The sixty-third Congress of the United States adjourned on the night of the 4th. In many respects it was a remarkable session for business. Some needed Legislation failed to materialize—the Ship-Purchase bill, being a measure that would have passed, had it not been for the action of a few Democratic Senators, who voted with the Republicans.

JUDGE BAKER ANNOUNCES.

Responding to requests which have come to me from many sources, I hereby authorize you through your paper to announce my candidacy, subject to the action of the Republican party at the August primary, to represent the counties of Adair and Cumberland in the House of Representatives of the next General Assembly.

No man with right aspirations is indifferent to the good will and confidence of his fellow men, and it is therefore gratifying to me that these requests come not only from party friends, Republicans who supported Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt in the last Presidential election, but from Democrats as well.

Under the circumstances, my action is controlled by no spirit of self-seeking, and by no ambition save that of being of service, so far as I am able, to the commonwealth, for, as I believe, a representative best serves the State.

We all desire to make of Kentucky a better Kentucky, and indications lead us to believe that our own desires in this regard will be gratified. While half the world is engaged in a work of destruction, we here have commenced a work of construction—widening the opportunities of our children by better educational advantages; adopting better agricultural methods, constructing good roads in a systematic way, and by other peaceful pursuits seeking to promote the prosperity and happiness of all the people. It is a great work which appeals to us—to our patriotism and to our sense of public duty.

It is a privilege to aid in it as a citizen: it is an honor if the duty is worthily performed, to

HEALTH OFFICER'S COLUMN.

BY U. L. TAYLOR.

I propose to write this week on measles, "Rubeola." This is a disease that is very wide spread, but is considered not very dangerous to life. A mistaken idea about it is that everybody, sooner or later, must have measles. It is a very contagious malady, more so I suppose than any other. Epidemics of it come through the country very frequently, and claim for its subjects nearly the whole population, everybody that has not been rendered immune by a previous attack. It spares neither race or color, or previous condition of servitude. It is considered a disease of childhood, but it is because nearly all but the young have been rendered immune by a previous attack. Not many people die from measles directly, but it lays the foundation for many serious complaints, and especially consumption. It is accompanied by a cough, but the main feature of it is an eruption, so marked that nobody is deceived by it after the eruption makes its appearance. I shall undertake to give neither symptoms nor treatment, because my business is prevention, and if that is a success, neither symptoms or treatment concerns anybody. This disease is so wide spread that it is almost always in some parts of this county, and schools are frequently suspended on account of it. Until recently the communities generally have not undertaken to stop or control it, and even health officers have been inclined to let run its course, but that plan is changed now, as far as this county is concerned. If smallpox breaks out in any part of the county, the wires are kept hot with telephone messages, calling for the health officer to come immediately and quarantine the suspects, flag the house, and the whole neighborhood is in confusion on account of it, and if a case of measles breaks out, in any community of the county, nothing is said about it. And yet last year in the State of Kentucky over 300 children died from measles, and only two all told from smallpox. Last year I undertook to keep children with measles, out of the schools, with the result that not a school was suspended on account of the disease. This year I propose to go one step further, and flag the house and quarantine the families in which it is to be found. While I do not propose to treat anybody with measles, it is, I think my business to remove from the minds of the people some erroneous notions about its cause and treatment. It is almost a universal belief that measles ought to break out thick all over the patient in order to having any show for its life. And the great poet, John G. Saxe, fell into this error when describing the fashionable mourner.

"I saw her last night at the party,
At the elegant party at Meeds,
And looking remarkably hearty,
For a widow so young in her weeds.

He then goes on and tells of her black veil, her black bonnet, her black dress, her black gloves and her black fan. In speaking of her black fan he says:

"Then there was the fan in its play,
Had quite a lugubrious scope,
And seemed to be driving away,
The ghost of the angel of hope."

He winds up his poem by saying:

"Ah, well it is idle to quarrel
With fashion, or aught she may do,
And so I conclude with a moral,
And metaphor warranted new.

When measles stand handsomely out,
The patient is safest, they say,
And the sorrow is lightest no doubt,
That works in a similar way."

We all know that smallpox when it breaks out but little, is the lightest case, and from an experience of many years and thousands of cases, I have come to the same conclusion respecting measles. It used to be common to dose the patient with gallons of hot tea, made of all kinds of "yerbs," in order to make eruption come boldly out to the surface, but that is all wrong. I have had some rich experience in my career as a physician, one of which I will relate: I was called one night to see a boy, Pig Rumstay by name. The father told me when he came, that his boy was chilling, and it seemed impossible to get him warm. I went with professional haste, and found a remarkable case when I arrived. The father, an old Dutchman, was greatly distressed, and said he believed "Piggie" would die "agin, already, still." The bed was sitting in one corner of the room, with a bed quilt hanging from the ceiling to the floor on three sides of it. In front was a red-hot stove within two feet, on the stove was a kettle of boiling water filled with all manner of "yerbs to make yerb tea." The boy had a feather bed under him, and nearly one dozen blankets and quilts over him. He was sweating profusely, and was wringing wet. He was cold and the family with all they could do was not able to get him warm. When I had him taken out from under all that "kiver" as they called it, the fire in the stove put out, the tea dashed out at the window, the boy rubbed off freely with dry clothes, the father, the mother, and all the galls thought I had killed him. But I had not. Piggie was up the next morning, and made a rapid recovery. A patient with measles should be kept cool, but not at the expense of all the water in his blood, and in his system generally. Parents always want to know how long after exposure to measles will the disease make its appearance. We never can tell, and doctors had better not try. If you tell them nine days, and the eruption does not come at that time, the patient is generally turned loose. Or if you say four or five days, it must come then, or the doctor will lose credit. If you miss the time, the people will conclude that the doctor does not know, and that is about the size of it. They will want to know when the patient is well, and can, with safety be set at liberty. As long as there is any scale from the eruption at all, the smallest possible to see, the quarantine should be continued. The defire of the child should not be considered in the matter. Better keep him a week to long, than turn him loose an hour too soon.

Very few farmers have broke any farm land yet, and not much other farm work done.

Wheat and oat crops look bad at this time. Both crops have been froze out some in this section. Poultry has done better this winter than any thing else. I mean the chicken hen from the way they are producing eggs at this time. There is less trading in cattle in this section than has been for 20 years.

We see from the move made in Adair county there will be some good roads built in that county. This is Russell county and we would be pleased to meet you at the county line at Montpelier and if that road is worked we will subscribe some for its construction and so will others. Russell may some day in the near future meet this with a pike from Jamestown.

We read in the Adair County News of Feb. 17, the new game law. The citizens of this section are law-abiding people. Not a man in my section has license or hunts. They don't want the quail and squirrel extinguished. What few there is we want them protected law or no law. But here is where the trouble comes in. The rabbit is protected by law under heavy penalty. At the same time they are a perfect nuisance to this section of country and increasing every year. The rabbit was worse on some gardens last summer than the dry weather. They will eat bean and pea vines and cabbages, in fact nearly everything in the garden. Men watch the garden with lanterns by night and shoot them. No fence we can build will turn them. They will get in and do the eating and get out before day. We have 220 acres of land and will insure there is 220 rabbits on it now and are eating my wheat. They have made the ground bare all round the edge of the field. Now, what are we farmers going to do. Let the pest overrun the country?

GENESIS OF WATER

The First Invisible Vapor That Enveloped Our Globe.

AND ITS CHANGE INTO STEAM.

How the Earth, Which Was Born Out of a Mass of Flaming Gases, Came to Have Its Surface Covered With a Liquid Which Cannot Endure Fire.

The story of the origin of water involves that of the birth of the earth. According to the generally accepted hypothesis, the earth was once a mass of heated gases, which included, in one form or another, every chemical element that we know. Among these gases were oxygen and hydrogen, the two elements by whose combination water is formed. But there was no water then because the heat was too great to permit of the combination of oxygen and hydrogen. The elements of water were present, but not water itself.

As the gaseous mass continued to cool a temperature was reached at which combination could begin to take place, and then water appeared in the form, not of liquid, but of an invisible vapor which we call watery vapor. Although oxygen and hydrogen had combined in this vapor, the heat was still too great for it to condense into the liquid state. With further cooling, however, it did undergo a partial condensation into that form of water which we know as steam. At that time the globe was probably a great white hot ball, enveloped at a vast height above its surface with a hissing shell or envelope of steam. In this immense steamy shell was contained, in the vaporous form, all the water that the future earth was to possess. The oceans were there, afloat as scalding clouds!

The central mass continued to cool and condense, and at last when the temperature of the rocky crust that had begun to form about it had descended to about 370 degrees C., the first true water—that is, liquid water—appeared on the earth. It fell in hot drops from the vaporous envelope and at first no doubt was instantly reconverted into steam by contact with the heated crust. After awhile the crust became so cool that the descending water could remain upon it in the liquid state. Then the mighty rains fell thicker and faster from the condensing envelope until the accumulated water formed great oceans or perhaps at the beginning one universal ocean surrounding the entire earth. That would depend upon the form of the surface of the crust at the time when the descent of the waters occurred. The origin of the present ocean basins goes back to the very beginning of geological history and antedates every period that can be fixed with reasonable certainty.

These facts explain why the earth has so great a quantity of water and where that water came from.

It is believed that the oceans cannot continue to exist for all time as we see them today. The minerals constituting the solid crust of the earth are continually absorbing water. It has been calculated that granite contains two gallons of absorbed water in every cubic yard. The condition of the moon, as revealed by telescopes and by photography, shows that a globe may, as far at least as its surface is concerned, become absolutely arid, no water whatever remaining upon it, although in ages past it may have been covered with oceans.

The drying up process, however, must be a slow one, and no considerable quantity of the oceanic waters can be absorbed into the earth's interior until the core of the globe has become relatively cool. At present the internal heat is so great that water cannot penetrate to a depth of more, say, than twenty miles at the most. It is only as the rocks cool that they begin to take up water in combination.

If we heat water to the boiling point we turn it into steam. If we heat the steam still further it becomes an invisible vapor, which may be made so hot that it will char a piece of paper like a flame. On the other hand, if we cool water to the freezing point it turns into a brittle solid—ice.

So if we had happened to be born in a fiery hot world we should only have known water as a searing vapor, capable of devouring metals like a strong acid, and, on the contrary, if our lot had been cast in an intensely cold world our only knowledge of water, as a natural product, would have been in the shape of a solid, harder than most rocks.—Garrett P. Serviss in New York Journal.

The Acorn.

Take a large acorn, suspend it by a thread so as to nearly touch the water in any glass vessel, set it upon your mantelshelf, bracket or table and let it stand there for about two months without in any way interfering with it excepting to supply fresh water. The acorn will burst, throw a root down into the water and a stem upward, sending out from the stem beautiful green leaves.

OUTSTANDING WAR FEATURES

The British Admiralty confirmed to-day reports of the sinking of two German submarines, the U-8, which the French Admiralty previously announced had been destroyed by a torpedo boat, and an unidentified submersible rammed by the collier Thordis.

The captain of the American steamer Gulfight, on arriving at Weser, Germany, is reported by a Berlin newspaper to have said that he witnessed the destruction of two steamers by a German submarine.

The first reports of definite effects on American trade of Great Britain's retaliatory policy against Germany come from Bremen. It is said that several American vessels which have been taking on cargoes of German goods, particularly dyestuffs, unloaded these cargoes and will return to the United States in ballast.

Although the assault of the allied fleet on the Dardanelles is continuing, there is such confusion of reports that it is impossible to gain a clear idea of what has been accomplished. The Turkish authorities admit that some damage has been done to the outer forts, but state that the defenses on which main reliance is placed are still intact. From British sources it is reported that the allied fleet has penetrated well into the straits, and that the inner fortifications have been damaged badly.

On land important battles are in progress in the Champagne region of France, in Northern Poland and in Galicia. No significant changes in these encounters, however, are announced.

While the Anglo-French fleet is striking at the Dardanelles, the Russian Black Sea fleet will attack the approaches to Constantinople from the East, according to unofficial advices from Bucharest. The Russian fleet is said to be off the Bulgarian coast steaming toward the Bosphorus.

The official German report of to-day says that the French left more than 1,000 dead before the German entanglement as a result of one of several attacks made yesterday along the western front. In the eastern campaign the Russian offensive continues without definite results.

Turkey.

British battleships using fifteen-inch guns, headed by the Queen Elizabeth, are bombarding the principal inner forts of the Dardanelles straits. Two of the forts have been damaged, and the magazine of a third has been blown up. Lighter cruisers of the Allied fleet continue attacks along the coast of Asia Minor to Smyrna. In this fighting the Allies lost nineteen killed and twenty-five wounded. The Turks lost 7,500 in killed, wounded, and captured.

Germany.

Conditions in Italy are being seriously considered in Germany, and public opinion is reported as favoring a more conciliatory policy by Austria, including possibly the ceding of the Province of Trent. The Government has requested Ambassador Morgenthau to take charge of its interests at Constantinople in case the Turkist officials leave the capital. A French official statement estimates the German losses since the war began at 3,000,000.

Russia.

Having counted the Austro-German attempts to outflank him in Eastern Galicia, the Russian commander is thrusting again at the German center in Poland. The Austrians are reported in full retreat toward the Carpathians.

United States.

President Wilson has under consideration, it is stated, a note of inquiry to Great Britain and France asking how the embargo on all commercial intercourse with Germany and neutral countries is to be carried out.
